

Woodcarve in the Beautiful
Texas Hill Country

Ed Moore

- February 14, 2014

Ed Moore has been a friend to many of us and carvers everywhere. Ed passed away February 14 following his battle with lung cancer. Ed wanted to say goodbye to his many friends. Here is a note from his daughter Joyce Hodges.

-- Dan Gillen

--

Dad/Ed grew weaker all night, Feb 13th. Glen (youngest son) sat with him from 8:30 am, his last medication time, until Glen had to leave for the airport about 9:30. When I went to give medication about 10:40 am, I could detect no breathing or pulse, but Dad was still warm. He just looked like he was sleeping. He had been waiting for it to be over for many days. It has been along 3 weeks since he was released from the hospital for the second time. He will be with his loved ones and friends who have gone before on this Valentine's Day. I called the hospice nurse and she came over and pronounced him dead at 11:55 am, Feb. 14, 2014.

The funeral home came soon after and took the body for cremation. Dad wants his ashes to be scattered in the National Forest on the other side of the mountains. The area is not open until June at the earliest, so tentatively we are planning to just hold the ashes until summer and will attempt to coordinate with anyone who wishes to be present for the scattering. The Forest Service Policy is that it is okay to scatter ashes, so long as we keep it low key and stay a certain distance far from water sources. Roy and I will probably make a preliminary trip in early summer, just to see make sure the snow is gone and see if there will be any logistical problems.

Joyce Hodges